PROCESS TAXES
ON CORN TO BE
REAL HARDSHIPWill Hit Farmers And Poorer Classes Sec.
Wallace Is Told

Washington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Testimony before the Farm Adjustment Administration's proposed 28-cent bushel processing tax on corn would result in hardships on farmers and on the "poorer classes" was given to the administration today by representatives of the wet and dry corn and milling industry.

Secretary Wallace, in calling today's hearing, said he wished full investigation to determine whether the proposed tax might result in increased consumption of corn, increased surpluses, and a further price depression. He indicated a desire for full investigation before any action.

Would Pay Tax
George M. Moffett, of the wet corn and milling industry, saying he represented the largest single unit of corn consumers in the United States, contended farmers would be forced to absorb much of the tax themselves.

He contended that higher prices for starch used in manufacturing were going to come back to the farmer. He described as a "poor exchange" the proposed benefit to the farmer as against increased prices he would have to pay for things he uses.

Robert C. Miner, representing the dry corn and milling industry, told adjustment officials the tax would result inevitably in decreased use of corn and would be detrimental to the poorer classes.

CORN-HOG CONFERENCE

Indianapolis, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Agricultural extension directors and farm leaders from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky met here today with U. S. Department of Agriculture officials to outline plans for the nationwide campaign to reduce production of corn and hogs under the Agricultural Adjustment Act program. Details of the campaign were gone into thoroughly at the conference, which will continue through tomorrow.

The program calls for 25 per cent reduction in hogs next year and 20 per cent reduction in the acreage to be planted to corn in 1934, for which the participating farmers will receive benefit payments. The program is the government's step to attempt to bring immediate and also long-time relief to the middle west, and is coupled with the program for reduction of wheat and cotton plantings and other products.

Claude R. Wickard, assistant chief of the corn-hog section, said the administration of the plan would be similar to the wheat reduction control plan, through county production control associations.

Under the corn-hog plan approximately $550,000,000 will be paid to corn belt farmers during the next 15 months with the first payments to start as soon as the contracts are accepted by the Secretary of Agriculture.

Funeral Of Mrs.
James Loan To Be Held Friday Morn

(Telegraph Special Service.)

Amboy, Nov. 2.—Mrs. James Loan, nee Jessie McGonigle, formerly of this city, passed away at her home, 3939 Congress street, Chicago, Tuesday, after a long illness. For the past three and one-half years she has been confined to her bed during which time she bore her sorrows with remarkable patience and fortitude. She was born in Bureau county, near Ohio, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McGonigle.

She is survived by her husband, James Loan, four children Francis, Leo, Alice and John; her parents and several brothers and sisters and hosts of near and dear friends. Her remains were brought to Amboy today and taken to the home of Edward Loan at Sublette, where short services will be held at 9 o'clock Friday morning and at 9:30 at St. Patrick's Catholic church at Amboy. Interment will be in St. Patrick's Catholic cemetery at Amboy.

Farmers Worse Off Now
Than When Relief Bills
Became Law in 'New Deal'Purchasing Power Is
Two Per Cent Lower
Than On May 15BY ROY F. HENDRICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Purchasing power for the American farmer—the goal of the Farm Adjustment Act—today was further away from mathematical realization than on May 15, three days after the act became law.

A dozen major programs had been launched by the Farm Adjustment Administration. Most, true, were still far from the stage where their creators look for fruit; but the buying power of the average unit of produce planted, cultivated and harvested by the farmer had lost rather than gained in potency.

Statistics compiled by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, made public today, showed that the farmers' purchasing power on May 15 was 62 per cent of the pre-war period, 1909 to 1914, but that for the week, October 11 to October 18, the last surveyed, his purchasing power was 59 per cent of pre-war.

Fail To Keep Pace
It wasn't that farm prices had declined. They moved up fast, bulged, receded, but still were above the May 15 level from October 11 to 18. The slump in the farmer's buying power was more largely accounted for by the increase in the average prices paid for dozens of articles which he needed for his family and to carry on his business.

Using the figure 100 to represent pre-war level, the prices paid to farmers on May 15 were represented by the figure 62, or 38 per cent under pre-war. At the same time, the average prices paid for the things he commonly needed was shown by the bureau's index as 61, or 1 per cent above pre-war. For the period October 11 to 18, the price paid farmers was 68, or 6 points above May 15, and 32 per cent under pre-war. But the prices farmers pay, meantime, had risen to 116.5 or 16.5 per cent over pre-war.

There is some variance between individual farm commodities in their relationship to "parity," or that price which would give them pre-war buying power. As of October 15, the bureau found wheat selling at 62 per cent of "parity"; cotton at 62 per cent; butterfat 66; beef cattle 58, and hogs exactly 50.

Governors In Capital
Meanwhile five middle western governors, reporting their farmers "in a striking mood, discontented and impatient," made ready today to put their inflation, price-fixing, licensing plan before President Roosevelt.

This picture of agrarian reactions was drawn by Governors Herring of Iowa, Berry of South Dakota and Langer of North Dakota as they awaited Governors Olson of Minnesota and Schmedeman of Wisconsin to come going to the White House.

All agreed that the present administration program "has merit" but that it was working too slowly. Fresh from a Governor's conference at Des Moines, they sought immediate price-fixing for the principal commodities produced in their states, an "NRA" code for farmers, under which farmers, processors and distributors would be licensed, and direct inflation.

"What is needed is help right now when the farmer has something to sell," they said.

Lindberghs Fly

Amsterdam, Holland, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here this afternoon after a flight from Les Mureaux, France.

They made a splendid landing at the naval airport at Schellingwoude in the outskirts of Amsterdam, following a stormy flight.

The couple was welcomed by the American Consul, but their arrival was not known to the general public and only officials were present.

MINN. FARMERS
JOIN IN STRIKE
MOVEMENT TODAYConsiderable Violence
Marks Milk Strike
In Wisconsin

BULLETIN
Milwaukee, Nov. 2.—(AP)—A dynamite bomb today demolished the cheese factory of El Bly, near Port Washington in a region where farm strikers are in control of the countryside. The explosion followed the blast completed destruction of the factory.

St. Paul, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The course of the farmers' long drawn out strike for higher prices today was marred by additional recruits in Minnesota and outbreaks of violence in Wisconsin.

While governor of five mid-west states took the farm strike problem to President Roosevelt at Washington, the Minnesota Farmers' Holiday Association announced that starting today its members would attempt to "tie everything up tight" so far as farm products were concerned.

Violence was reported in several sections of Wisconsin yesterday and last night about 150 farm strikers seized an interurban car at Watertown, Wis. and dumped 17,000 pounds of milk. Windows in a cheese factory at Plymouth, Wis. were shattered by a bomb and milk was dumped in Milwaukee.

Leader Repudiated

The strike in Wisconsin was also marked by the repudiation by three county holiday association units of the leadership of their state president, Arnold Gilbert, who recently ordered the anti-selling movement to be temporarily suspended. Leaders of Wood, Marathon and Clark counties said they wished to continue the strike, despite Gilbert's order.

The Minnesota unit sought to withhold produce and livestock from markets until prices reach the cost of production level. Meanwhile, the group recommended that its members pay no taxes and no interest and prohibit "forcible collection of debts."

Meanwhile, Milo Reno, president of the National Farmers Holiday Association, said at Des Moines that the farm strike was in "inactive suspension" pending the Governors' conference with Roosevelt.

ADMINISTRATION
REJECTS PARLEY
ON RELIEF BILLSIndicates Confidence The Bond Issue Will Be Passed Next Week

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Thomas P. Simey, of Rock Island, Democratic leader of the House, today formally rejected the Republican offer to confer with a committee in an effort to solve the prolonged deadlock over financing of unemployment relief.

The rejection indicated that the administration supporters were confident they could obtain the necessary 102 votes next week for the $30,000,000 relief bond issue program.

Because not more than half the Representatives were present today, the House adjourned until Tuesday without taking further action on the bond bills, the Lantz program for relief taxes in Cook county or downstate alternative proposals for raising funds.

Simey told the House that he could see no benefit in the proposed conference with a Republican committee of eight.

Would Condemn NRA
Just before adjournment, Richard J. Lyons, Mundelein Republican, asked for consideration of his resolution, introduced yesterday, which condemned Administrator Hugh Johnson and the recovery program for the NRA dispute with Henry Ford.

"I'm not permitting this to be considered," said Speaker Arthur C. Roosevelt, "because I'm raising the objection that it is outside the call for the special session, and then I am sustaining the objection because it is so utterly ridiculous."

In reply, Lyons asked: "What is ridiculous, the resolution or your ruling?"
The resolution praised the labor policies of Ford, said the "boycott" demanded by Johnson would put thousands of Illinois men out of work, and asked that President Roosevelt replace Johnson.

Drivers Overladen
Trucks Are Fined

State Highway Officers Edward Mahan of Dixon and Rex Flach of Amboy have been assigned to duty west of DeKalb in the Lincoln Highway, where with a force of nine state police, they have been weighing trucks bound for Chicago markets. Last night nine drivers of trucks were arrested and taken to DeKalb where fines of $50 and costs each were assessed for overloading. The campaign against overladen trucks is to be continued on other highways in this locality, it is reported.

The state highway officers have also received instructions to start a drive against cars improperly lighted. Cars with but one headlight and no tail light will receive the attention of the officers for several days and drivers may prevent being arrested by giving their lights some careful attention at once.

Three Youths From
Rockford, En Route
To Fair, Are Jailed

Chicago, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Three young men enroute to see the Fair for $1.15 were detained today to explain it all.

Suspicious of the county highway police were confirmed by a telephone call to Rockford, whence the police discovered the automobile they drove had been stolen.

The youths gave their names as Donald Abel, Marvin Peterson and Marshall Peterson, all of Rockford and all 16 years old. The Petersons are cousins.

Stopped on an outlying road, they said they were motoring to the World's Fair, but admitted they had only $1.15. The car they drove was stolen from John Hammer, Rockford, leaving Rockford, they had collided with another car which was wrecked. The trio was held for Rockford police.

In 165 out of 234 fatal motorist accidents recently analyzed in England, motorists were under 29; in 60, between 30 and 35 and in 9, over 55 years of age.

FUNERAL RITES
TOMORROW FOR
RUSSELL LEAKELife-Long Resident Of County Mourned By Countless Friends

The funeral of the late Russell Leake will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Charles R. Leake residence, 521 Peoria avenue, Rev. A. E. Whitcomb officiating. Interment will be in the Temperance Hill cemetery where officers and members of Dixon lodge, No. 779, B. P. O. Elks will conduct the commitment service at the grave.

Russell Leake was born near Temperance Hill in Macusha township, March 26, 1849, and had lived in Lee county his entire life time. He was the son of Daniel and Emily Leake. He attended school at Temperance Hill and later was a student at the Dixon Academy, which was located in what is now Bluff Park in the east part of Dixon and Aurora Schindler. As a young man he taught school both in China and Amboy townships and later followed the vocation of farming. He had been a resident of Dixon for the past 41 years. He was married to Ellen Adell Moseley, Oct. 13, 1871, who passed away March, 1911. A son, Frank E. preceded him in death in April, 1910.

Mr. Leake was well known in Dixon, Lee Center, Macusha, Amboy and China townships and his friends were legion. He was of a retiring disposition and while often was urged to seek public office, never sought this distinction. For several years, he had been one of the prominent members of Dixon lodge of Elks.

Met Serious Accident

On July 16 of this year he was visiting at his farm in Macusha township and while standing on a cement platform, a door which had been propped open, blew shut, knocking him off the platform.

In the fall, he sustained an impacted fracture of the right hip. He was a patient at the Katherine Shaw Betha hospital for five weeks and was then removed to his son's home where he had been confined since. The injury was almost healed and he was apparently in his usual good health and fine spirits when he suffered a heart attack which resulted in his unexpected passing at 1:30 yesterday afternoon. Coroner Frank M. Jankor conducted an inquest over the remains at the Presbyterian mortuary this morning at 10:30, the jury finding that death was due to a chronic heart attack. A son, De Witt C. Blair of Wheaton arrived last evening to take charge of the remains.

It was thought that the amputation of two fingers might be necessary today, the attending physician stated.

Tiverton, R. I., Nov. 2.—(AP)—A disaster in which three or more lives were destroyed and millions of gallons of petroleum products were consumed still flamed its menace over Tiverton today, more than 24 hours after a fire started to $1,000,000 already done, flames still roared in the plant of the New England Terminal Company while watchers cast apprehensive eyes at the huge 80,000 barrel tank still intact, with its contents of 23,000 barrels of kerosene. While firefighters said its seams had begun to open and that the tank might crumple at any time, veteran oil men expressed the opinion it would come through the fire intact. It was estimated that the oil fed flames would run 36 hours longer.

Cost Lives of Three

The disaster, which began with the collapse of a new tank being tested with salt water and which was followed by an electrical short circuit, fire and a series of explosions that destroyed seven tanks of oil products cost the lives of Leslie Hornbeck, 25, of Tulsa, Okla., Taylor Henshaw, 26, of Vinita, Okla., and Henri A. St. Pierre, 25, of Fall River, Mass. In addition an unidentified man was feared dead and dozens of persons suffered serious injuries.

Buildings and other equipment were destroyed by the flames and two residences were ignited by the heat, but were saved. Many residents of the neighboring area spent the night at homes of friends or slept on cots in a schoolhouse.

CHICAGO SLAYER
RECAPTURED IN
ELECTRIC LIFTMan He Says Gave Him
Gun Escaped Ring
Of Detectives

Chicago, Nov. 2.—(AP)—John Schreck, desperate young killer awaiting execution for the murder of a policeman in a Criminal Court room, broke loose again today from the bullpen of the county jail but was recaptured a few moments later in an elevator.

Schreck had been arraigned on a robbery charge and was waiting in the bullpen for return to his death cell when he tore away from his guards. He dashed into an elevator, slammed the door shut, but was unable to operate the lift and after a ten minute siege he opened the doors and raised his hands in surrender.

Twice before the young gunman has tried to escape, once wounding a policeman at the Detective Bureau and a few weeks ago killing Policeman John Sevik as he raced through a Criminal Court room. He was captured in a lobby, however, and sentenced to death for the murder. Subsequently he was convicted of the murder of a bank cashier in the robbery for which he was originally arrested.

Schreck's mother was accused but acquitted of a charge of smuggling to him the gun with which he killed the policeman. In her defense, the youth testified the pistol was handed him by "Verne Miller." The authorities doubted his story.

Miller Escaped Net
Coincidentally, Miller, the one-time South Dakota Sheriff who turned gunman and became one of the most hunted men in the country, was still at large today after escaping the gunfire of federal agents who tracked him to a Chicago hideout.

In custody, however, was his wife. She was seized at the Sheridan Road apartment hotel where the Millers had registered as Mr. and Mrs. George Hayes, a few minutes after Miller made his spectacular dash from the place last night while machine guns rained bullets around him.

The escape of the man wanted for the Kansas City Union Station massacre of last June in which four officials and Frank Nash, an escaped prisoner enroute to Leavenworth prison, were killed, was one of the most thrilling in the annals of the federal government.

Plans Went Awry

Agents revealed today that they had traced Miller to the hotel four days ago and had laid careful plans to prevent just such an escape as did occur.

Government men replaced attendants at a filling station across the street; others had rented a room in the hotel near the one occupied by Miller; and officers armed with machine guns maintained a 24-hour watch from an apartment window across the street.

But with all this preparation Miller escaped. Agents said they believe he was warned yesterday. Last night a cream colored roadster driven by a woman, identified by federal men as Miss Bobby Moore, a resident of the hotel, drove up in front.

The moment Miller appeared on a fire escape he was greeted by a volley of bullets. He fled back into the building and dashed for the main entrance. As more bullets whizzed around him he answered them with shots from his automatic. In a dozen steps he was beside the woman in the car and it was away.

In the gunfire the woman was wounded but she drove on and made good Miller's escape—and her own. A few minutes later the car was found—punctured with bullet holes. It had crashed into a parked automobile and a fire was flat from a bullet. Blood was spattered on the windshield.

Returning to the hotel the agents took Mrs. Miller into custody. She had been waiting in her room. After questioning her briefly she was held for further quizzing today.

St. Louis Negro, Who Confessed
Criminal Attacks On Many White
Women, Was Executed Early Today

St. Louis, Nov. 2.—(AP)—After talking most of the night with a woman prisoner beyond the wall of his death cell, John Winston Boyd, Negro, confessed attacker of fifteen white women, was hanged in St. Louis county jail at Clayton, a suburb today.

He was taken from his cell at 6 A. M. and was pronounced dead 15 minutes later.

His wife and mother visited him last night. Boyd was working as a porter when he was arrested. A series of attacks on white women in St. Louis, St. Louis county and East St. Louis, all apparently by the same Negro, occurred over a period of several months. Boyd admitted them all and several that had been unreported.

"I've made my bed and I'll lay in it," he said last night. He was dishonorably discharged from the Navy several years ago.

"The first box of Gly-Cas amazed me with its results," said Mrs. George Boyer, Route No. 4, Centerville, Iowa.

MRS. GEORGE BOYER

I was miserable for 30 years, often had spells when I couldn't turn in bed, was unable to do my work and entirely helpless. My knees and ankles swelled terribly with rheumatism, joints became stiff. My kidneys got me up four and five times each night and stomach would bloat after eating, heart palpitated. But Gly-Cas gave me perfect results, why the first box relieved me of that awful suffering and I am greatly improved in every way. It is easy to understand now why so many people are praising this new Gly-Cas—it is the first medicine I have ever taken that did as advertised.

Gly-Cas is sold by Campbell's White Cross Pharmacy, Dixon and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns.—Adv.

SEEK VAST WEALTH
IN OLD MINE AREA

Colorado "Faults" May Yield New Fortunes.

Durango, Colo.—Fabulous treasures—immense deposits of ore on old lines—will be sought by some of the major mining companies of the United States in the San Juan mountains, located in the extreme southwestern section of Colorado, as result of reports made by the United States geological survey.

These blind ore-bodies, extensions of old deposits that have in the last half century yielded many millions of dollars in silver and gold ores and the baser metals, lead, zinc and copper, have been located, according to Dr. T. S. Lovering, who, with W. S. Burbank, passed several years in completing a survey of the San Juan range for the United States geological survey.

The mining district of the San Juan basin is along a huge triangular fault.

This fault has cracked and wrinkled the strata on the three sides of the triangle and it is in these cracked areas that all producing mines are located, including the Camp Bird, from which the late Thomas Walsh secured his millions; the Smuggler-Union, with a 57-year gold producing record; the Tomboy, another famous producer; the Sunnyside, that made the late Joe and Will Terry multimillionaires, now owned by the United States Smelting and Refining company, and the Silver Lake owned by the Guggenheim.

The largest virgin mining district in Colorado, if not the entire United States, known to contain good-size and often large well-defined quartz in sulphide materials associated with iron pyrites, with dominant values in gold, is known as the Rim district.

Near Old Gold Mines.

The Rim district is a rough country. It covers sections of four southwestern Colorado counties, Archuleta, La Plata, Hinsdale and Mineral. The entire district is contiguous to the gold areas that have been productive.

The district has been little prospected. Ores found there show little oxidation and the sulphide minerals come close to the surface. In short, the mineral-bearing veins are similar to those in the same range of mountains at the famous camps of Silverton, Ouray and Telluride.

The Rim district, a potential gold field of importance, one well worth prospecting, is traversed by the San Juan river and its tributaries.

For the reason already mentioned, the scientists have had great difficulty in obtaining native guides. "Every one who goes up that hill dies," say the natives. "We don't know why—but they die."

A Formidable Fortress.

The Hill of Mystery is a mass of hard sandstone rising out of the tropical bush of the Limpopo valley. It is the only hill in the neighborhood topped with grass, and it is

St. Agnes Guild Dance Illini Hall

The members of St. Agnes Guild of St. Luke's church will sponsor Friday evening at Grand Detour, in Illini Hall, a dance, which it is hoped will be well patronized. It is not a formal event, but very informal, so do not go "all dressed up like Astor's party," because you will feel lonesome if you do, for it is distinctly understood that it is not a dress up affair. Nevertheless everyone will have a delightful evening and no doubt the attendance will be large.

PAST ORACLE'S NIGHT.

ASHTON R. N. A.
Past Oracle's night was observed by the Royal Neighbors on last week Wednesday evening in Ashton. Besides a large attendance of local members there were a number present from camps in Rochelle and Compton and Dixon.
Each Past Oracle of the Ashton camp was honored with a bouquet of chrysanthemums as she was escorted into the hall. Mrs. George Fruin of Dixon presided. Past Oracles filled the several stations and the drill work was presented.
The evening was spent at "506," dancing followed the meeting and light refreshments were served.

D. A. R. MEMBERS TO BRING DONATION.
Members of the D. A. R. are asked to bring their Ellis Island donation to the meeting Saturday afternoon with Miss Josephine Nichols.

New This Week At Dixon Library

Ah, Wilderness—O'Neill—In this new play Eugene O'Neill relaxes from the tragic mood. He reveals a vein never even suspected by his most enthusiastic followers and creates a new pattern for a truly indigenous American drama. Ah, Wilderness is now playing in New York, and has received enthusiastic comment from all critics.

Comrades of the Storm—Kyne—A western story by one of the best known writers of cowboy thrillers. Hell's Desert—Spearman—Another western, guaranteed to waste a couple of hours pleasantly.

Martyr—O'Flaherty—This story of the civil war in Ireland starts from the dramatic crisis brought about by the conflicting temperaments of Crosbie, first in command, who hates violence and bloodshed, and Tracy, a reckless gunman who urges his men into situations of grave danger. Crosbie is attracted to the fiery and aristocratic Angela, who scorns his inaction. From this beginning arises the intense and exciting action which throughout the swift-moving scenes rushes forward to disaster.

White Piracy—Bellah—Romance and melodrama on the estate of a Maryland millionaire. It has three heroines, three heroes, and a fine lot of supernumeraries, and the ace dialogue is 1933 model.

Greater Courage—Pedler—A new love story by the author of "Tomorrow's Tangle." The first time she met him, he rescued her from a bandit, and didn't even ask her name. The second time he saves her from a frozen death and asks her to marry him.

Great Tradition—Hicks—The dominant movement in American life since the Civil War is the rise of industrialism. Since that movement is all permeating it is perfectly fair to relate the important writers of the period to it. Certainly the tradition of critical realism is the theme since 1865. Emerson, Whitman, Howells, Dreiser, Lewis, Dos Passos are linked together by common sympathies and similar outlooks. Mr. Hicks describes very clearly the development of these outlooks, in accordance with the limitations placed upon each man by his environment.

Nancy—Nichols—Sometimes she washes her dolls, sometimes she washes their clothes, or helps mother wash the windows. She likes soap suds. Whatever Nancy does is fun. The book has unusually beautiful photographic illustrations which will appeal to adults as well as to children from 6 to 10.

Blue Buns—Sewell—Andrew, a big goose and his fat wife Martha, adopt seven little ducks who were born in an incubator. For those 6-9.

A B C for Everyday—Sewell—From the moment A stands for "awake," to the end when Z is "zip into bed" you can follow the hours in this gay alphabet picture book. Each letter is accompanied by a full page picture in color which shows amusing children going through the routine of a small person's day. For those 4-7.

P-u-n-k—LaRue—Just right for boys and girls who are beginning to read alone. The word selection is suited to the smallest reader, and the type is large.

Should Imitate Mrs. Wiggs If Possible

(By Olive Roberts Barton.)

Do you remember that famous little book, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," the story of the family who lived across the railroad tracks?

You well know how this famous widow in her little shanty contrived to keep her children and everybody around her happy, and fed the occasional visitor by putting an extra tin of water in the potato soup.

I think we shall have to revive Mrs. Wiggs. There are too few of her kind today.

A widowed mother came to me for advice. She has four young children and a small income. It is hard for her to get along in the small town where she lives.

Her idea is to put the children in a school or home somewhere so she can go out to work.

There would be no work there, so that means she would have to move to the city where she might or might not get a position.

My answer was, "Keep your family together under one roof if it is humanly possible."

Certainly I appreciate the value of the institution. It fills a heaven sent place, and I should hate to think what we would do without it. It is only that I have a certain feeling about home, real home, for little children, even though the soap is washed and the bugs are in that soap up and beyond the water line, although the latter may offer a hundred material advantages over the other.

There must be exceptions, of course. If a mother is ill or overworked and there is no means of subsistence—if the child is actually undernourished and the surroundings impossible, I might advocate the removal of the child to give both of them a chance.

But it would have to be a last resort. There is nothing to my mind that needs more weighing and deliberation than this matter of separating a child from his home.

My views on the Mothers Assistance Fund are well known. Not only that, but some day soon we shall engage in our system and have more state-appointed doctors so that medical attention will be possible for all such children free of charge to the poor mothers.

Situation With Mothers

It is no wonder that some mothers become discouraged with every one listening in their ears that the children need this and that—earth's lightest regular medical examination, base and tissue building foods, and a certain regimen of living that is beyond their means to provide and control. "This is the cause, no doubt, of so many women willingly and even eagerly placing their little ones where these things will be attended to. No mother wants to lose her children and the wrong reasons are too often credited to those who do.

Mrs. Wiggs knew nothing of vitamin D, or calcium, or ultra violet rays. But she had a vast philosophy and a capacity for happiness that reacted like a strong light on those about her, and on the child. The sun of her soul took the place of science and they all well.

With few exceptions there is nothing like home and mother. Soul content is too often discounted in this materialistic age. I repeat my words to my questioner, "If it is humanly possible, keep your children with you."

Mr. and Mrs. O'Hare Honor Her Mother

Mr. and Mrs. Austin O'Hare of Route 2, Dixon, entertained in honor of Mrs. J. Roy Knapp, mother of Mrs. O'Hare. Five hundred was played during the course of the evening. Mrs. Joe Tusha won head prize and J. Roy Knapp the consolation prize.

After the birthday gifts were opened refreshments were served. At a late hour the guests departed wishing Mrs. Knapp many more birthdays. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Roy Knapp, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Tusha, Mrs. Elizabeth Miller and Mrs. Emma Stitt, of Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. John Farley of Harmon.

DISTRICT MEETING, ASHTON REBEKAHS, FRIDAY EVE.

The district meeting of Rebekahs was held with Ashton Lodge No. 497 last Friday evening, and a most delightful time was spent. There was a good attendance of members, and there were many members present from a distance, representing lodges at Rock Falls, Sterling, Dixon, Amboy, Rochelle, Lee Center, Morrison, and Fulton. There were visitors present from California and Iowa.
A program was presented after the business meeting. A playlet entitled, "Tragedy of the Light-house" was presented by Edgar C. Shippee, Alan Grant, Miss Helen Drummond and Mrs. Elmer Wagner. Other numbers on the program included a solo by Miss Leona Grant, a reading by Edgar D. Shippee and music by the Wisconsin male quartet.

Following the program dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served. The decorations were in keeping with the Halloween season.

THERE'S A REVOLUTION, TOO, IN POLITICS.

One of the things that may be changed almost beyond recognition by the times we now are living in is the good old American game of politics.

Even before the "new deal," it was a common saying that it took a highly trained expert to tell a Republican from a Democrat with the naked eye. Today the situation is even more puzzling.

A sample of the confusion is to be found in the matter of tariffs.

The Smoot-Hawley tariff act, passed by a Republican Congress and signed by a Republican president, was a target for Democratic oratory almost from the day it became law. It figured in the campaigns of 1930 and 1932. Democrats beat their breasts and called on the heavens to witness that this bill was throttling trade. Many got themselves elected on that issue.

And what have we now, with a Democratic administration?

About the only thing the last Congress did in connection with the tariff was to increase the President's power to shut out foreign goods through the flexible-rate provision. The whole doctrine of economic nationalism—under a president whose party traditionally opposes that doctrine—has been pushed forward to a greater extent than at any other time within a century.

Furthermore, it is reported in Washington that actual embargoes will be laid under the new price-raising policy. The maligned Smoot-Hawley bill, far from being too high, seems to be too low.

If all this is confusing, it is not more confusing than some of the other things that have been happening.

Certainly it is no stranger than to see the party which always stood for states' rights and a minimum of interference by the federal government putting forward a program under which the federal government has more power than the devoted follower of Alexander Hamilton ever dreamed of giving it.

As a result of this scrambling of the eggs, it is not so hard nowadays to tell Republicans from Democrats. A Democrat, it seems, is a chap who looks like a Republican—and vice versa. And the scrambling process is by no means over.

The inexorable logic of events is twisting our politics out of all the old forms. What we are going to have when we get through is a complete mystery.

The one safe bet seems to be that an extensive realignment of political thought is beginning to take place.

BOOTLEGGING IN HERITAGE.

The bootlegger is a product of modern times. He originated in the United States, but he has a way of appearing in almost any country where people want something which is prohibited by law. His latest appearance is in Germany; and there, of all things, he is peddling—grandmothers.

It happens like this: In Nazi Germany a man hardly can hope to get a job unless he can prove that he has "untainted Aryan blood" way back to the third generation. Consequently there is a huge demand for family records to prove that one's grandparents were suitably Nordic.

A lot of people aren't eligible for such documents; others are eligible enough, but have no papers to prove it. So there is a brisk business in forged papers. For a price, the German bootlegger will help you prove that your blood is strictly German-gentile for three generations back.

Of all forms of bootlegging the world has seen, this surely is one of the oddest.

I've been losing money for 12 years. Recently I've been forced to borrow on my insurance policies to meet running expenses, and I don't know what I'll do when I've used them up. I doubt if I can hold on.—Gov. Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska.

I am convinced that prohibition at its worst has been definitely better than booze at its best.—Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

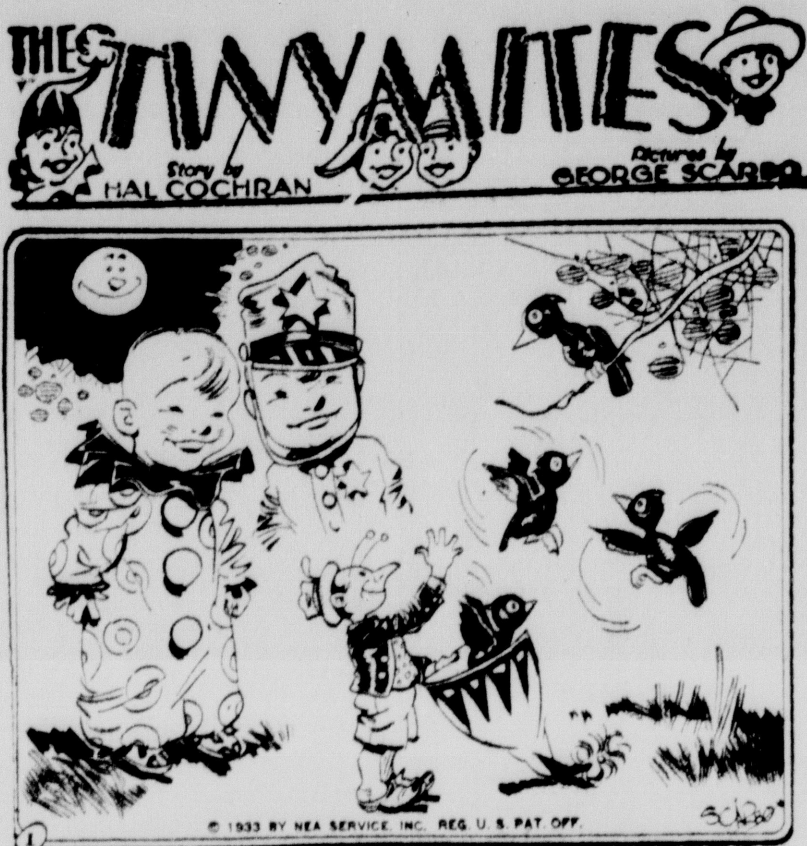

One of the most powerful instruments for education in the world, the moving pictures, is in the hands of people who are not interested in children.—Prof. W. W. Charters, Ohio State University.

The call of today is for that spiritual force which popular standardization puts to the heaviest test—moral courage.—Bishop William Lawrence of the Episcopal Church.

Certainly I would never shoot an elephant for a trophy.—F. Trubee Davison president of the American Museum of Natural History.

I always find it difficult not to give my children too much advice.—Anna Roosevelt Dall.

I enjoy housework very much.—Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The blackbirds flew right to a limb. The Mystic Man said, "I'm in trim to do a lot of clever things. That trick worked out just grand! The birds came out of Duncy's hat. What do you Times think of that? You saw the trick, and noticed all I did was wave my hand!"

Said Goldy, "Twas a clever thing! And now, can you make those birds sing? Just 'Caw is really all I've ever heard a blackbird say."

The Mystic Man said, "You forget that nothing's ever stopped me yet. The birds have never sung before, but they will sing today."

Once more he gave his hand a fling, and all the birds began to sing. "Why, they sound like canaries," shouted Duncy. "Gee, how queer."

"Now, when they stop, I'll also sing. I know a clever little thing." "That's fine," exclaimed the Mystic Man. "Your song I'd like to hear."

The birds' strange singing soon died out and then the bunch heard Duncy shout, "Well, here's my song. I must admit, it's cute as it can be."

"I wish I was a blackbird. Say, I'd fly and sing the livelong day. I wouldn't have to work a bit, and that appeals to me."

"My, what a song," we Dotty cried. "I think you ought to run and hide your face. You're such a lazy lad." This made the Times roar.

The Mystic Man then said, "I'll do another little trick for you. Now, watch real closely. Times! There's a big surprise in store."

He waved his hand with all his might. The four birds disappeared from sight and in their places came four men. Cried Coppy, "Look at that!"

"Who are those men? What can they do?" The Mystic Man said. "They'll show you. They're going to put on quite an act. Each one's an acrobat."

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Paul In Jerusalem

Text: Acts 15:1, 2, 6, 22-31

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 5.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of The Congregationalist

Every new religion, or every new phase or manifestation of an old religion, brings its problems and its controversies.

What is the relation of the new to the old? How much of the old should survive in the new outlook and experience? How can the substance and reality of all that was good in the old religion be preserved unless one lays stress upon the symbols and forms in which that religion expressed itself?

Again and again these issues arise in all movements of religion. In fact, it is interesting to see the extent to which they arise in all movements of conviction, and of a progressive nature, without regard to their essentially religious character.

Socialists and Communists of today quarrel about matters of definition and interpretation and programs of action in very much the same way that early Christian sects and later denominations have contended in controversy over the orthodox view and the orthodox way.

One of the earliest phenomena in the program of Christianity was the winning to the new faith of those who were not Jews. Paul, who was himself a devout Jew, though he now had become a Christian, felt called upon to keep up certain ritual observations in which he had been trained from his youth and which still had meaning for him.

He did not, however, see any reason why non-Jews accepting the new faith should be burdened with ritual practices which were foreign to them, and which hardly could have the meaning of significance that they had for those brought up in Judaism.

It may seem that Paul's views were not altogether consistent and also that they varied from time to time. The whole matter probably was one of such difficulty of adjustment that it was hard for even so clear seeing and clear thinking a man as Paul to rise to the heights of a view of Christian simplicity and liberty that consistently was manifested.

Later we find Paul, in Jerusalem, shaving his head in ritual observance of a vow that he had made; and the whole situation seems strangely at variance with the clarity and independence of the views that he elsewhere expressed on the subject of Christian liberty.

It is seldom in deeply controversial

L. A. Downs* says:

Few taxes are based on revenues, but of course they all have to be paid out of revenues.

Out of every $10,000 of revenues in 1932, taxes took $850 from the Illinois Central System $110 from one barge line on the Mississippi River, $30 from another, 64 cents from another.

In sharing and lightening the common tax burden, the railroad thus is nearly eight times as valuable as one rival carrier, nearly thirty times as valuable as another, more than one thousand times as valuable as another.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

*President, Illinois Central System

W. E. Whitson* says:

In 1916 taxes took 4.4 cents out of every dollar earned by the railroads. In 1932 taxes took 8.8 cents out of every dollar they earned.

Forty-six per cent of all taxes paid by the railroads in twenty midwestern states go to support the public schools.

The railroads paid to Lee county taxes for the year 1932 $100,754.33.

*Agent, Dixon, Ill., Illinois Central System

sial issues that men think and act with complete open-mindedness. Even where there may be no prejudice, it is difficult to avoid an attitude of compromise, because of practical considerations.

A distinguishing mark of the Jew, and a central and sacred rite of his religion, is the practice of circumcision. When certain men from Judea came into the communities where Paul and Barnabas had been winning Gentiles to the Christian faith, they insisted that these new converts should conform to the "custom of Moses," and demanded that if they did not do so they could not be saved.

Paul and Barnabas were equally insistent that this Jewish rite was not necessary for the Christian faith or salvation of these Gentile converts. Paul and Barnabas were sent to Jerusalem to the apostles and elders of the church there to determine this question.

The result was that the church at Jerusalem sided with Paul and Barnabas and sent to the Christians in Antioch Judas and Silas, "men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jesus Christ," to bear witness to this decision.

The decision, in effect, was that these Gentile Christians should observe the moral law and the deencies of conduct, but that they should be free from the necessity of placing themselves under ritual burdens which could have for them little meaning or reality.

This controversy was much more than a church quarrel. It was a division of opinion about a major matter in which the conflicting convictions no doubt were sincere and honorable. But the decision was crucial, marking the virtual saving of Christianity from the fate of becoming a narrow and sectarian religion.

Would God that all controversies within the Christian church had issued so favorably and tended to keep Christianity in the realm of simple, moral and spiritual realities!

Daily Health Talk

ENURESIS

Mankind has subjected its excretory functions to many strict regulations and has surrounded them with many taboos. Undoubtedly this is so because experience has taught that the improper disposal of excreta invites disease epidemics.

The Mosiac laws contain strict injunctions on cleanliness and the earliest forms of sanitation concerned themselves principally with the efficient disposal of human waste.

The emotional element which enters into this matter is carried over into many remote fields. A patient may suffer long with a chronic inflammation of the gall bladder and keep putting off going to the doctor for a long time. When the same patient, however, develops some minor fault in the rectum, he promptly seeks medical aid.

We see much of this emotional concern with excretion in the manner in which parents react when their children are subject to enuresis, or bed-wetting, as it is commonly called.

Undoubtedly the child thus afflicted is under an emotional as well as a physical handicap. But what is the nature of this handicap?

Some have the impression that the child under such circumstances is likely to be constitutionally and intellectually inferior. This belief, however, has been discredited by recent studies, which showed that the intelligence of groups of such children is on an average neither inferior nor superior to that of the common run of children.

On the other hand, children so handicapped do have certain distinctive symptoms, mostly of a psychologic nature. They are liable to be nervous children, subject to worry and to emotional conflicts. Whether these psychologic symptoms are the cause or the result of the condition is not always easy to determine.

Experience, however, has shown that adjustment of the environment so as to make the child feel at ease and happier is one of the first essentials in the successful treatment of enuresis.

PILLAR OF SALT

By L. L. R.

During the first year of their married life, the Smiths were very happy. Their little spats were very easily settled in the customary way and all went well.

But while they were happily engaged in planning their home and in doing the scores of other things that young married people must do when starting their new life, they failed to observe that their tastes were really far apart.

Mrs. Smith worked hard. There were flowers to mind and washings to do, and scrubbing. All these things she did because she enjoyed doing them.

Her labor often lasted until it was time to go to bed. But she did not read, didn't enjoy music, and couldn't converse well; so her work was merely the thing in which she performed best.

Mr. Smith also worked hard. But in the evening, when he was tired, he found joy in heading and rest in soothing music. I know he regretted the fact that his wife would not share his evening.

Under these conditions, the two were drifting slowly apart. Both sensed it, no doubt, but neither could do anything about it.

In his daily work, Mr. Smith came in contact with many people. One of these was an attractive, though not beautiful, woman. Each time they met they would converse a little, until finally they were well acquainted.

The outcome was that Mr. Smith and the woman met secretly on occasional evenings. At these times they simply talked together of the things in which they were both interested.

Mr. Smith and his wife were losing the happiness they had known at first, and the breach between them constantly widened. The end came into view.

The result is that the husband is now in jail. Not being a tactful diplomat, he flatly left his wife and refused to support her. And she, not being a reasoning person, slammed him where he now is.

This is only one case; there are thousands of others. Of course the name in this particular case is not Smith.

Everyone enjoys a visit to the Walgreen stores at the Century of Progress. It is a nice place for luncheon.

SCOUT MOVEMENT GAINS MOMENTUM IN THIS COUNTY

Many Boys Seek To Enroll Following Tuesday's Camp Fire

A Halloween camp fire was conducted Tuesday evening under the supervision of the local organization of the Boy Scouts of America, and more than 200 boys, some of whom are not members of the Scout organization, participated in the activities.

A. V. Newman, Field Scout Executive; Enos Keithley, Lee County Scout Commissioner; Dr. R. E. Worsley, Merit Badge Counselor; Edwin Bunnell, Field Scout Commissioner; Kenneth Abbott, Scout Master of Troop 89; V. Carrier, Assistant Scout Master Troop 60, and a number of other men interested, actively, in Scout work, put on a program which occupied the boys for a period of two hours. At the close of the entertainment, a number of the lads expressed a desire to join the Scout organization, and for the information of their parents and themselves, troops are conducted under the supervision of the Congregational church, St. Luke's church, Christian church, Methodist church, St. Paul's Lutheran church and the K. C. lodge.

Any parents of boys may inquire of their boy friends who are members; or contact the Chamber of Commerce or the churches or organizations connected therewith mentioned above.

An elementary meeting for Scout leaders and those interested in the program for youth was conducted at the South Central school gymnasium last night. No admission will be charged at the meetings which will continue on the following dates at the same location: Nov. 1st, 3rd, 8th, 9th, 16th and 17th.

The public at large may not know that in 1932 the national organization of the United States consisted of 1,260,000 boys, whose activities are supervised by 278,000 adults. In the local area covering five counties, Boone, Winnebago, Ogle, Lee and Whiteside, there are 3600 boys enrolled from 3,000 families, under the supervision of 72 adults.

This movement is gaining momentum in this district. Boys who join are trained the principles of good citizenship, which, of course, means a respect for property and the rights of others.

entertained with a Halloween party in the parlors of the Union church Friday evening. The young people all came masked and in costume. Lester McNinch received first prize and Miss Kathryn Foulk second prize. The judges were Miss Anna Erbes and Mrs. Alma Oester. As the guests assembled they were received into a very haunted place where ghosts of all descriptions could be seen. They were then escorted into the beautifully decorated parlors where the evening was spent in Halloween games. Late in the evening pumpkin pie and ginger ale were served.

Bandit-Proof Bank Door on Display

St. Louis.—A bandit-proof bank door, invented to prevent robbers from entering financial institutions either before or after business hours, is on exhibition here.

The mechanism is a chamber of bullet-proof metal, just large enough to accommodate one person. It has two sliding doors. When one is opened the other locks automatically. Thus, an employee enters the metal chamber from the foyer, closes and locks the door behind him, then opens the door into the banking rooms by means of a secret combination dial.

If anyone unfamiliar with the combination attempts to operate the dial, both doors lock and he is trapped in the small room.

ALTER PARK TO HELP SIMMONS GET HIS HOMERS

Comiskey Has Home Plate Moved Closer To The Stands

Chicago, Nov. 2.—(AP)—When a ball player doesn't like the ball park, why just change the park! That's what Owner Louis Comiskey is going to do so Al Simmons will get more home runs and become friendly again with Comiskey Park.

All last season Al grew sadder and sadder as he watched center-fielders haul down long drives that would have been home runs in the average major league park. Finally Owner Comiskey heard about it. Result: Owner Comiskey has called up a staff of landscape artists, gardeners, etc., and ordered them to move the home plate about 14 feet toward the center of center-field. When they get through, the measurements of Comiskey Park from home plate to center, left, and right fields will be approximately the same as Shibe Park in Philadelphia, where Al became famous. The change will give the catchers a lot of room to catch foul balls behind the plate, give the customers a better view, make things far more miserable for the pitchers, and give Mr. Simmons an easier target with his home run drives.

Sale Of St. Louis Browns Is Urged

St. Louis, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Sale of the St. Louis Browns by the heirs of the late Phillip de Catesby Ball has been recommended by President William Harbridge of the American League.

"Our experience in the past has been that a ball club cannot be operated by an estate as successfully as if individually owned," Harbridge said in a formal statement. "For this reason it may be that Mr. Ball's family will decide the better course would be to dispose of his baseball holdings."

that's why you get 30% more mileage by getting new Goodyears now!

OF COURSE you want the grip of tough new rubber between your brakes and the road in fall and winter—when there's more slippery driving than any other time in the year.

And now—scientific tests prove that tires "broken in" during wet, cold weather average 30% more total mileage.

Hot summer roads make tires wear faster. Using your brakes on hot dry roads is like holding them against a whirling grindstone.

But roads are cool in winter—and most of the time they're wet. That means danger when your tires are thin and worn. But it means protection for stout new rubber, because the water prevents rapid wear by preventing friction between the tire and the road.

Think that over, and ask yourself—can you afford to wait till spring when new Goodyear Pathfinders are still selling today at prices just about the same as they cost a year ago?

form. The sum of $335 will be awarded as prizes and local lads hope to bring home a portion of the sum. The show will be supervised by John Weiss, Smith-Hughes instructor at Dixon high school. Classes in oats, corn, potatoes, wheat, barley, five breeds of chickens and class in eggs.

Numerous reports of the loss of stock from hemorrhagic septicemia are made by farmers of the communities. Commonly called "shipping fever," the disease is often accompanied by violent outbreaks upon the part of the affected animal. On the Perry Meyers farm near Lighthouse, an animal suffering from the disease attacked the children who had been sent to bring up the cattle. Fortunately they escaped. Frank Beman of Washington Grove also was attacked by a cow suffering from the malady, and barely escaped going by escaping to another field. Later the animal was found dead. On the Myers farm, it was found necessary to kill the cow.

SUCCESSOR OF ANDERSON WILL BE ON SPOT TOO

Several Former "Irish" Stars Considered As Football Coach

(NOTE: This is the fourth and last of a series of stories on the football situation at Notre Dame University, based upon personal observation and interviews with athletic and faculty leaders.)

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)
South Bend, Ind., Nov. 2.—(AP)—Notre Dame's football coaching problems, agitating the best minds of the University and its alumni ever since the death of Knute Rockne, have not yet been completely solved, sundry and conflicting reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

For the time being Hunk Anderson is being given full support in the attempt to achieve some recovery from this year's dismal start, particularly in the climax games with Southern California and Army, the two arch rivals of the Irish. There is no secret now, however, that this is Hunk's last year as head coach and that steps already have been taken to install another alumnus of the Notre Dame system in charge of the 1934 squad.

Salient Features
Although for obvious reasons no official confirmation is forthcoming as to any and all prospective changes, here are the salient features developed from reliable sources:

1. Jesse Harper, founder of the Notre Dame system and the sponsor of Rockne, will remain at least one more year as Athletic Director, longer if he desires, and will pick the next coach.

2. Noble E. Kizer, one of the famous "Seven Mules" of 1923-24 who opened the holes for the "Four Horsemen" and now head coach at Purdue, stands at the head of the list of coaches favored to succeed Anderson. He may be under contract already.

3. Elmer Layden, fullback of the "Four Horsemen" and now head coach at Duquesne University, may be inducted to return as backfield coach, although he is reluctant to do so.

Some Want Crowley
4. A big wing of the alumni organization still favors the selection of James H. Crowley, another "Horseman," for the head coaching assignment, despite the fact he now has a three-year contract with Fordham, signed after it developed he could obtain no assurance a year ago that he would be given the chance to take charge at Notre Dame.

5. The names of James Phelan, former Notre Dame quarterback, now coaching at the University of Washington, and Edward P. (Slip) Madigan of St. Mary's, one of the early Rockne pupils, also have been closely associated with the talk about Anderson's successor. Madigan, at least, has indicated he is too well satisfied where he is to go back under the guns again at South Bend.

Talk Outsiders
Although there is no question the choice will fall upon a prominent product of the Notre Dame football school, the discussion of what was best to be done covered so wide a range that several non-Notre Dame names were introduced into the debate. Chief among these is Ossie Solem, former Drake coach now in charge of the gridiron squad at the University of Iowa. From personal observation and association, many Notre Dame leaders have the highest regard for Solem's coaching ability.

"The point is that any Notre Dame man who returns now to take charge of football will be subjected to the most penetrating scrutiny and critical publicity," one of the most prominent alumni leaders told me. "So many excellent candidates for the job have been advocated that the man selected will be just as much on the spot as Anderson has been."

"The situation is especially sensitive because east, west and south of Notre Dame you will find its coaching products enjoying unusual success."
"So much now has been spilled about Kizer going back that he has already been put in a difficult position. Kizer's team plays Notre Dame at South Bend next week. What do you imagine that reaction will be if Notre Dame stages a come-back and gives Purdue a sound beating?"

The Alpha-Particle
The atom-smashing bullet of the scientists, an alpha particle, is simply a compact little bunch of four protons, fitted tightly together. One alpha particle composes the nucleus of an atom of helium—helium being the light gas with which the bags of dirigible balloons are filled. The nuclei of other,

ROCKFORD STAR IN COMMAND OF ILLINI'S ATTACK

Jack Beynon Is One Of Slickest Of Big Ten Quarterbacks

By PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
Chicago, Nov. 2.—(AP)—One of the slickest quarterbacks who ever called a signal, a field general who is a one-man huddle in himself, will direct Illinois' stand against the onslaught of Michigan's powerful Wolverines Saturday.

Jack Beynon isn't Captain of the Illini football forces, but he's in supreme command on the field—proxy-in-chief of the wily Bob Zuppke, the coach with a "thousand tricks." A star in his own right with a forward passing arm that has amazed thousands with its unerring accuracy, he's the big brain cell of the Illini.

Quarterbacks are quarterbacks, but the unruffled, sharp 20-year-old Liberal Arts student from Rockford, Ill., holds an odd position in Zuppke's scheme as a one-man huddle. Here's how it works. The players, except for Beynon, form a huddle open at one end, for just an instant, Beynon sizes up the situation with one sweep of his critical eye and then jogs in through the opening of the huddle. His mind is made up, his decision undisputed to all except his chief, Zuppke, and he gives out the play. Not a second is lost and the strike is made very quickly.

Has Zuppke's Confidence
Result: gone are the mistakes made possible by mixed emotions and brain storms of excited players. One man and only one is responsible and he is the one in which Zuppke has infinite reliance to do the right thing at exactly the right time.

Quite a assignment for a college boy, but not for Beynon, a well proportioned 162-pounder in a five-foot-ten-inch frame, has performed remarkably well. Serious but calm and confident under the heaviest fire, he didn't make a mistake as the Illini crushed Wisconsin, 21 to 0, and he almost beat the Army with his spectacular passes, completing 12 out of 17 for a total gain of 153 yards. He is a consistent punter, gets good average distance and places his kicks exceptionally well. Seldom does he miss a catch on a punt. As a running quarterback, he is not extraordinarily fast, but is elusive enough to be dangerous.

Warm weather may creep into the alibi after Saturday's battles along the Big Ten front, pitting Minnesota against Northwestern, Purdue against Carnegie Tech, Indiana against Ohio State, Wisconsin against Chicago and Iowa against Iowa State, in addition to the important Illinois-Michigan struggle. It has been almost too warm to practice this week and today all the coaches were hoping for some cool, crisp weather for their final drills.

Around the Big Ten
Bill Proffit, regarded as a coming star at Minnesota last year, is back in condition and may be an additional surprise for Northwestern Saturday.... Chuck Duvall is making Dick Hanley of Northwestern smile again with his dashes.... After three days rest, Purdue is back working against Carnegie Tech passes.... Illinois has a complete notebook of Michigan's old plays, including old "B" so the Wolverines are scheming some new ones—Sam Willaman denies he will abandon the double wingback. He says he will have a great number of variations.... Wisconsin's varsity outplayed the freshmen yesterday and those Badger yearlings are good.

Artist Jailed

Routed from bed in his Westport, Conn., home, McClelland Barclay, noted magazine illustrator, is pictured in Bridgeport, Conn., Court where he was ordered jailed in default of a $35,000 bond demanded by his first wife's attorney for failure to pay alimony.

The Pacific coast has practically a week off from titular struggles with the meeting between California and its half brother, University of California at Los Angeles, as the outstanding struggle, Oregon entertains Utah, perennial Rocky Mountain champion, and Santa Clara plays Rice in intersectional clashes on the coast.

The eastern "championship," an affair which usually allows plenty of room for argument even after all the games are played, also seems due for a rest. With practically all the leading teams playing intersectional games, they can't very well decide which is best in their own section. But if Fordham can turn back the Galloping Gai of St. Mary's without too much trouble, if Colgate can turn in a decisive victory over Tulane or if George Washington can whip Tennessee it may advance the national prestige of this trio considerably.

The meeting between Duke, present Southern Conference leader, and Auburn, title holder in the old conference last year but now a member of the Southeastern group, looks like the leader in Dixie. But there are plenty of interesting tilts in both conferences, including Georgia-Florida, Alabama-Kentucky, Vanderbilt-Georgia Tech, Virginia-Maryland, North Carolina-North Carolina State and Virginia Polytech-Washington & Lee.

BROWN JUG MAY BE EMBLEMATIC OF BIG TEN RAC

Michigan And Minnesota
May Decide Title
November 18th

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Associated Press Sports Writer
New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—If Michigan's great team can whip Illinois this week and Minnesota can get past Northwestern, the little brown jug may be the symbol of the 1933 Western Conference football championship as well as the emblem of triumph between Michigan and Minnesota.

At the present, these two look like the most important teams in the whole midwestern area despite the claims of Nebraska, headed toward another Big Six title, and a few other strong schools. This week's opposition is by no means easy for either, and the Wolverines still have to tackle Iowa, beaten only by Minnesota, before the big game Nov. 18.

Furdue, another possible title contender, goes outside its section this week playing Carnegie Tech. The game is more of a test for Howard Harpster's Titans, unbeaten, victorious over Notre Dame but held to a scoreless tie by Washington & Jefferson last week.

Nebraska, with four straight triumphs over strong opponents, has almost clinched the Big Six title and shouldn't have much trouble against the luckless Missouri outfit this week. Kansas, which faces the Cornhuskers a week later, has to beat Oklahoma Saturday to make a threatening position.

Arkansas, Southwestern leader, has a week off while Texas and Southern Methodist clash in the leading conference battle. Texas Christian faces the Baylor Bears, down at the bottom of the standing, and Texas A. & M. encounters an outsider, Centenary, which has beaten Baylor and played scoreless ties against Texas and Texas Christian.

The Pacific coast has practically a week off from titular struggles with the meeting between California and its half brother, University of California at Los Angeles, as the outstanding struggle, Oregon entertains Utah, perennial Rocky Mountain champion, and Santa Clara plays Rice in intersectional clashes on the coast.

Grimes Is Released By St. Louis Cards

St. Louis, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Burrish Grimes, who has been throwing spitballs and making faces at National League batters for the last eighteen years, was out of a job today.

The Cardinals announced that Grimes, one of the last of the moist-ball pitchers has been given his unconditional release.

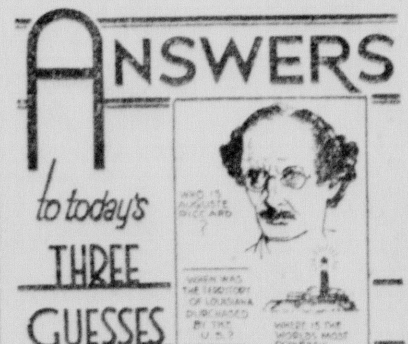

Grimes, who helped pitch the Cardinals to pennants in 1920 and 1931, came back to the Red Birds last April after the Cubs had given him his release. In his long career he has pitched for six of the National League clubs, winning 266 and losing 207 games. In four world series he won three and lost four.

Forgotten Sweetheart

MARY RAYMOND
DIXON, ILL. 25813

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JOAN WARRING, pretty Memphis girl, and BOB WESTON, son of a millionaire, meet in Memphis and fall in love. They become estranged through the scheming of HARRY RA. COURTNEY, who is trying to win Bob for herself. Joan goes to New York to search for Pat, her sister, who has run away after an unhappy love affair. Joan is hired as a masked singer at a night club. Believing Bob is lost to her, Joan becomes engaged to BARNEY BLAKE, owner of the night club. Pat reappears and becomes Barney's secretary. It is not long before he realizes he loves Pat instead of Joan. Joan sings at a private fashionable entertainment and discovers she is in Bob's home. Bob recognizes her voice. Because of her agitation, Joan leaves before her final encore. Bob follows in his car. He goes to the night club and asks Barney for Joan's address. Barney refuses to give it to him. Angered, Bob leaves. He returns to plead his cause again and learns Barney has gone home. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXI

BOB opened the telephone directory and ran his eye through the list of Blakes. There it was—"Barney H. Blake." No, it was "Mrs. Barney H. Blake." Queer! From what Barbara had said he had supposed Blake was a bachelor. Well, it was no matter. The address must be right because it was the only "Barney Blake" in the directory.

It was a rather grim-looking young man who piloted the gray roadster through traffic to the Park Avenue address. Bob was driving as rapidly as possible, at the same time remembering that untimely arguments with traffic officers would only retard his progress.

He was elated, almost gay when he halted before the apartment building. A few moments more and he would be on his way to Joan! A few moments more!

In the lobby a sleepy clerk gave him the number. Bob decided he would not risk ringing and perhaps hearing a polite refusal. He caught the elevator to the fifth floor.

Joan heard the knock on the door. She had changed to a simple short-sleeved house frock. The costume she had worn on the stage—and during that hasty drive home—lay where she had dropped it on the bed. Her slippers were on the floor where she had kicked them. A forlorn Cinderella had returned from the ball.

Realizing sleep was impossible, Joan had decided to unpack a miscellaneous assortment of boxes that cluttered the room. After a while she gave up the task, letting her thoughts drift as they would. She sat at the window and looked out. She had been in Bob's home, a beautiful home mellowed by years, over which the gracious presence of his ancestors seemed to brood.

Wrapped in her thoughts, Joan scarcely heeded the knocking at the living room door until it became insistent. It was Barney probably. He had been worried by her nervousness, disturbed because she could give no explanation of her strange manner.

Joan rose and opened the door. For a moment there was silence. Joan saw a light leap into Bob's eyes and then she suddenly. He stared blankly at her.

"Come in, Bob." Such a trite way to greet him when there was such rapture in her heart.

"You found me," said Joan unsteadily. "Yes," said Bob. His voice was hoarse. "I wish to God I hadn't!" He was still standing, staring at her with dark concentration. Joan thought he looked drunk. Yet she was sure he had not been drinking. He looked ill. Something was certainly wrong.

"What's the matter, Bob?" she asked gently.

He did not answer. He caught her by the wrists, held her away from him while he studied her face. Suddenly he laughed and pulled her into his arms.

Between fierce kisses on her lips Joan was whispering, "It's been so long. I couldn't bear it. Bob! Do you really love me?"

Without answering he flung her from him violently. "Now go back to him!" he said hoarsely.

He was gone then, running down the stairs. Joan stood where he had left her, amazed, bewildered. What had Bob meant? He had discovered that she was the masked singer. Perhaps he had heard that Barney was in love with her. Maybe their marriage plans had leaked out.

Their marriage plans! Still shaken by the memory of Bob's kisses only one thought remained clear to her. She could not marry Barney now that she knew Bob loved her. Bob had been swept by some terrible emotion. Jealousy or rage. Nevertheless he loved her.

That thought was slugging through her agitation, a winged shaft of light through the dark unhappiness that had enveloped her for so long. She must tell Barney, in the morning. No, she must tell him tonight. She had been planning to cheat Barney and herself. Now, whatever came—even if she never saw Bob again—she could not marry Barney.

She called the number and after a long moment heard his voice: "Yes, Joan, what is it? Are you ill?"

"Barney, something's happened. Can you come?"

She heard the click of the telephone which meant she knew that Barney would be on his way. Dear, dependable Barney! He was like the rock of Gibraltar, a bulwark of strength. Like a hand always waiting to help her.

IN the mirror above the console table she saw a shining-eyed creature. A flame had leaped up in her heart, transforming the passive sober-eyed girl of an hour before into a creature of glowing radiance.

Barney was at the door then. It seemed such a short time since her call that he must have dropped out of the sky. Barney, disheveled and bare-headed. "My God, Joan, what is it? Has anything happened to Pat?"

"Pat," Joan repeated, weakly. "Why no, Barney—"

And then, as Barney sank weakly in a chair hiding his face with his hands, light flooded Joan's mind. "Oh, Barney, dear! Why didn't you tell me?"

He looked up, smiling a little in embarrassment. There was relief in his eyes. "Lord, but you gave me a turn! I thought that Pat—"

"You and Pat in love—and not telling me!" Joan murmured. She sat down beside him. "Oh, Barney, what you must have been through! And Pat too!" Her words were broken off suddenly at the memory of Pat sobbing in the night. Pat's wan face as she went doggedly, bravely through trying days.

"Joan, what's happened?" Barney asked. "You mean you really don't mind about us?"

Joan told him then about Bob. Barney groaned. "I got dumber every day!" he said. "Weston came to me for your address tonight and I wouldn't give it to him. You see, Joan, I thought he was just a rich rascal looking for another thrill."

That explained it all. Bob for some reason must have interpreted Barney's refusal to mean that he was in love with her.

"I'll call him tomorrow and explain," Barney promised.

"No, he'll come back. He was just excited," Joan said. Loving each other as they did, what could possibly keep them apart? Now that she and Bob both knew what was in each other's heart.

"Are you sure?"

"Sure," Joan said and meaning it. She had never been so happy.

"You and Pat—?" She went back to the subject engrossing him. "I can't see why you didn't tell me. Didn't you know you were cheating?" And then Joan had the grace to blush.

Barney said, "We were a pair of saps, I guess."

THE door opened and Pat, enveloped in a bright lounging robe, stood regarding them. "What," she began, "could you all be talking about at this hour?"

"About heaven," said Barney, tenderly opening his arms. Pat, without question and reading assurance in his happy eyes flew to him and was gathered into his arms.

"And angels," whispered Barney, his lips against Pat's bright hair. Joan said, tears in her eyes, "Bless you my children!" She went on, "Barney, now that you've changed brides just before your wedding don't you think Pat should be getting her beauty sleep? In the five seconds while I turn my back you may tell her you love her."

"As if I didn't know," came Pat's happy voice, muffled against Barney's coat.

Joan went to her room and sat down by the window again. The lights which had seemed so cold and hard a short while ago now glowed warmly, twinkling gayly at her. The radiance in her heart was spreading, enveloping the world!

"Mrs. Robert Weston," She whispered the words to herself. It had been meant to be from the beginning. All the pain had been so useless. On a romantic impulse Joan went to her desk and wrote the name, then caught the little white square of paper against her heart.

Pat, coming into the room quietly, switched on the light. "Joan, I thought you would be in bed."

"I couldn't sleep," Joan said softly. "I'm too happy."

"And me!" said Pat, her face illumined. "Oh, Joan, I can't believe I'm the one getting married tomorrow!"

Joan was glad it was Pat who was to be married tomorrow—to Barney. She was sure the same time tomorrow would bring Bob back to her.

Mickey Walker To Tackle Rosenbloom Tomorrow Evening

New York, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Already possessor of a unique ring record in his long years of boxing activity Mickey Walker, the Rumson, N. J. "Builder" will try to win his third world championship title when he faces Maxie Rosenbloom over the 15-round route at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Eleven years ago Walker won the welterweight title. Then he took the middleweight crown from Tiger Flowers. For two years he was an outstanding heavyweight contender, although far smaller than most of the fighters he faced and now he is after the lightweight championship.

Walker is tackling a tough job in tomorrow's scrap as Rosenbloom was always a clever boxer despite his lack of a deadly punch, and is especially good over the 15-round distance.

Walker says he will quit the ring if beaten.
